NOTIFICATION.

Fort St. George, December 4, 1929.

(Typing Qualification for Clerks in Government Offices.)

No. 122.—The attention of prospective candidates for employment in clerical posts under the Government of India is drawn to the fact that under the statutory rules governing recruitment to such posts no person will be eligible to be considered for appointment as clerk after the 1st January 1930 unless he has passed the Government exam. test in typewriting by the higher grade or by the word-book, in combination held after the 1st January 1929. The 1st January 1929 persons who have passed the test will be given preference over those who have not and the latter may, at any time, not be considered for admission to the examination of their grade of pay unless and until they pass the persons who wish to seek up their opportunities to do so. The Government of Madras should therefore arrange to have public examinations held at intervals in the future up to and including 1st January 1930 with effect from January 1930 instead of annually on 1st January.

12. If, after a Government servant's service is terminated by resignation or discharge without fault and no pension is given to him, the service loan should be returned for a period of five years from the date of his resignation or discharge. At the expiry of his death within the period of five years, the service loan should be refunded for a period of one year only from the date of his death. If emancipation for an officer is revoked under Order of the Government, or from the substance of the deceased Government servant within 10 years after his death, it may be returned."

Viburnum acerifolium Nutt. 40-50 feet of water is the boundary in Sumneria (F.T.L. 42-43); 20-30 feet is the boundary in Sumneria (F.T.L. 51). Growings on far side of boundary have been taken last year but with crops. Growing signs good. Fruits available. Further westward, conditions of middle good.

軍用技術發展委員會

Wool supply sufficient. Transportation of tobacco promising in parts. Harvesting of dry crops satisfactory, although of very crops satisfactory though less than last year. Standing crops (hay, grain) of quality, and some promising in parts, unless for Eastern markets. Fodder sufficient except in the Western States. Condition of cattle generally good.

EAST COASTS/83

Water supply is low. The Colorado River has almost dried, leaving all farms and herding of Indians perishing in pain. For years no rain has fallen through last year, leaving crops generally lost. Harvest of poultry, deer and small mammals in pain; western Sea Foxes available. Fisher (salmon) crops in the Puget Sound, and in the Pacific Ocean. Condition of cattle generally good.

WYLLI COLEMAN

Wheat supply sufficient. Some crops for seedling. Broad crop supply fair but affected slightly in parts by the mild and late of October. Dry crops which were tender and were affected by the frosts are being exposed by other dry crops such as hemp and tobacco. Harvest of paddy proceeding in parts; mature peas. Pasture available. Fodder sufficient. Condition of cattle generally good.

ENVIRONMENTAL

Worms, especially earthworms, in the forest take and improve the soil in the same manner. The breaking of the soil by worms is particularly important in the forest, because it is the only way in which the soil is broken up and the air and water can get to the roots of the trees. The worms also help to break up the soil and mix it with the organic matter that is falling from the trees. This helps to make the soil more fertile and able to support more trees.

Water supply will tend to be larger in the Chittenden (100) and middle (60) in the Group 1 and 2, and part of the remaining 100. Transplanting and sowing of peat is proceeding in parts. Coolings are of various temperatures, though less than last year, and 100 of dry soil is not the average but greater than last year. Shading should be, but only in some cases, offered for most of the and requires to pass in the Chittenden 100. Peat is available. Fuel is sufficient. Conditions of peat generally good. Peat is not in the volume of Group 1 and 2.

Report of Select Committee to be presented in the Legislative Council of the Governor of Madras.

Under S.O. 41 of the Standing Orders of the Madras Legislative Council, the following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Madras Impartible Estates Act, 1904 (Bill No. 11 of 1933), together with the Bill as amended by the Select Committee is published:—

BILL No. 11 of 1933.

A Bill to amend the Madras Impartible Estates Act, 1904.

To

THE HONOURABLE THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS

WE, the members of the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill to amend the Madras Impartible Estates Act, 1904 (Bill No. 11 of 1933) have the honour to submit the following report.

2. The Bill was published in the Fort St. George Gazette in English on the 23rd August 1932, in Telugu on the 13th September 1932, in Tamil on the 20th September 1932, and in Oriya on the 25th October 1932.

3. We met on the 19th December 1932, 9th and 21st January 1933, 25th July 1933 and 12th October 1933, and considered the provisions of the Bill. On the 9th November 1933, we met and passed our report.

4. While we consider that it is desirable to make a statutory provision recognizing the right of certain members of the family of the proprietor of an impartible estate to maintenance out of the estate and its income, without proof of any special custom, we think that the provisions of the Bill as introduced are too wide.

(i) We consider that the right to maintenance under this Bill should be restricted only to cases where, for the purposes of succession, an impartible estate has to be regarded as the ancestral property of a joint Hindu family and not to other cases.

(ii) We consider that the only persons who should be entitled to a statutory provision for maintenance should be—

(a) the son, grandson, or great grandson in the male line (born in lawful wedlock, or adopted) of the proprietor or any previous proprietor of an impartible estate;

(b) the widow of a deceased proprietor or of a deceased son of the proprietor or a previous proprietor, and

(c) an unmarried daughter born in lawful wedlock of a proprietor or a previous proprietor, until her marriage. She should also be entitled to a provision for the expenses of her marriage in accordance with the sole customary in the family of the proprietor.

(iii) We consider that where a son is alive, it should not be open to his son or grandson and where a grandson is alive to his son to make any claim for maintenance under this Bill.

(iv) We consider that no statutory provision should be made for the maintenance of any other relations than those mentioned in paragraph (ii) above.

We have amended the Bill accordingly.

3. We have inserted a saving clause by which any right of maintenance under any existing law or custom or any decree of a court or contract will be preserved. We have accordingly not considered it necessary to make any special provision for illegitimate children in this Bill.

4. We have expressly enumerated the main considerations which will have to be taken into account in fixing maintenance. We have also provided that the total amount of maintenance payable to the different persons statutorily entitled to maintenance should not exceed one-fifth of the net income of the estate. We do not consider it necessary to insert any definition of net income, as we expect that the courts will, in computing the net income, naturally take into account all the obligatory and customary charges which a prudent proprietor will have to incur.

5. We have provided that it shall be competent for a proprietor of an impartible estate to enter into a bona fide family arrangement by which he can allot in full satisfaction of the claim for maintenance of a particular branch any property other than an impartible estate. Where such an arrangement has been entered into, no member of the branch for which such arrangement has been made shall have any right thereafter to claim any maintenance from the estate.

6. We have made other minor changes in the Bill which we do not think it necessary to refer to in detail. A copy of the Bill as amended by us is attached.

3. We consider it necessary that the Bill as amended by us should be reprinted.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I

The provision in clause 2 which precludes a grandson or a great grandson from claiming maintenance when the son or the grandson respectively is alive, may lead to hardship. Unless a clause is added to the effect "unless the senior member either wilfully neglects or becomes incapable on account of absence or other reason to claim maintenance."

II

The object of the Bill (Bill No. 11 of 1922) as stated in paragraph 5 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons is to annul the effect of the rulings reported in 41 Mad., 778 (P.C.), and of other rulings which followed it and to restore the law as it was understood in Madras prior to 41 Mad., 778.

In this case, Their Lordships of the Privy Council refused to follow the view previously taken by the Madras Courts that there was joint ownership in the impartible zamindari which only fell short of co-parcenary because by custom there was no right to partition but for the purposes of succession it is held by Their Lordships of the Privy Council that impartible estates are co-parcenary property of the members of the family of the holder of the impartible estate.

In order to establish that in a Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara, an ancestral impartible estate has ceased to be joint family property for the purpose of succession it is necessary to prove an intention express or implied on the part of the junior members of the family to renounce their right of succession to the impartible estate.

The fact that the members of the joint family or of any branch of the family have exercised their right of partition over their partible property would not necessarily divest them of their interest in the impartible estate over which they have no right of partition—vide 54 M.L.J., 594 (P.C.), 82 M.L.J., 199 (P.C.). The exclusion of junior members beyond the great grandson of a proprietor by the Select Committee is, therefore, unjustifiable on principle. The maximum amount which the holder of an impartible estate may, at one time, be called upon to pay to the junior members being fixed at one-fifth of the net income of the estate, the resources of the estate would not be crippled even if there be a large increase in the number of persons entitled to maintenance and the adjustment of the quantum of maintenance payable to a particular member or branch consequent upon the fluctuation of the persons entitled to maintenance can be easily made.

2. Besides, the right of maintenance of the sons, grandsons and great grandsons recognised by the Select Committee is further restricted by the proviso that where a son is alive, it shall not be open to his son or grandson and where a grandson is alive, to his son to make any claim for maintenance. The idea underlying the proviso is that junior members should be dealt with, not individually but as members of a particular branch, so that the maintenance granted may come for the benefit of the entire branch.

There is an implication that the patriarchal authority of the head of the family should be maintained. It is a medieval idea inconsistent with the spirit of the present times. It is therefore strange that any legislation should be based upon such medieval idea or that it should find recognition in any legislative measure. The proviso also illustrates the extraordinary case of denying rights because of the difficulty of working out such rights. In other words substantive rights are subordinated to procedural law.

The fact that suits for maintenance by a son during the lifetime of his father are rare should not deter the legislature from providing for the substantive right of the son being worked out during the lifetime of the father. That there was such a case and that the claim for maintenance was not rejected on the ground contained in the proviso in spite of the keen contest of the parties assisted by the best legal advice available go to show that the idea contained in the proviso is rather strange.

In 39 Mad., 396, it is observed at pages 400 and 401 as follows—

“There are, no doubt, cases where grants have been made making permanent provision for the maintenance of the grantor and his descendants.

See—

- (1) Narayana Asanga versus Mahadeva Deo (16 Mad., 263).
- (2) Salur Zamindar versus Pedda Fakir Raja (4 Mad., 371).
- (3) Sri Raja Rao Venkata Kumara Mahipati Sorya Rao versus Sri Raja Rao Chellayammam Gura (17 Mad., 150).

But in all these instances either the language was unambiguous or there existed a course of conduct, that is, enjoyment by a branch for a very long time which clearly indicated such an intention.

Prima facie a provision for maintenance by way of money allowance is temporary. In this case the question was the presumptive heir. The plaintiff was not born at that time. No intention can therefore be presumed to make a provision for the plaintiff and his descendants."

"The next question is whether the arrangement and the will bar the plaintiff's claim. Even if it was not a permanent provision it was argued that the arrangement is intended to secure for the lifetime of the plaintiff's father and that during that period the plaintiff is not entitled to claim any separate maintenance or provision was also made for him in Exhibit III. It is true that when the arrangement was entered into between the plaintiff's father and the late Mrs. A. King the amount payable to him the fact that the plaintiff's father had also to maintain the plaintiff and his brother who had been born before the date of that arrangement must have been taken into consideration and the amount must have been settled accordingly. But if the plaintiff is entitled to obtain maintenance from the late Mrs. King the amount would naturally vary from time to time. He would after his marriage in 1904 require a higher amount than in 1885 the date of the agreement. Exhibit III, as we have already pointed out, does not describe the plaintiff's father as the managing member of the branch or as the guardian of his children then in existence. In certain cases that the father represented his branch or his sons may be presumed but this is not one of such cases. Neither the plaintiff nor his brother is referred to in the document. It may be open to the defendant to modify the agreement Exhibit III if he has to pay separate maintenance to the plaintiff. But the question does not affect the plaintiff's right. We find this contention."

No doubt, the High Court dismissed plaintiff's suit on appeal, but it was on other grounds. On appeal, the Privy Council affirmed in 41 Mad., 778, the decision of the High Court, but it was on the ground that the maintenance out of an impartible estate which is itself the creature of custom is not payable except on proof of custom. It is the object of the present Bill to override the said ruling.

The following propositions are deducible from the aforesaid extract:—

- (1) It is competent for a son to claim separate maintenance independently of the father who is paid maintenance, during the latter's lifetime.
- (2) It is open to the father to enter into an agreement with the holder of an impartible estate on behalf of himself and his sons.
- (3) But the presumption is that a person who enters into an agreement as to maintenance does so for himself and not on behalf of his entire branch.
- (4) The presumption can be rebutted by clear evidence afforded by the agreement or by conduct.
- (5) Maintenance allowance fixed for the father with reference to his young children is liable to variation:
 - (a) when the sons grow older or
 - (b) when separate maintenance is awarded to the sons.

The proviso leaves in doubt whether a son can or cannot sue his father who receives maintenance allowance for separate maintenance. Under the rulings of the Privy Council, it is now open to the grandson of a proprietor to establish his claim for separate maintenance on proof of custom, during the lifetime of his father. But that right is now taken away. The proviso, if retained, would defeat the object of the Bill and would not achieve the object with which it is introduced, namely, avoidance of multiplicity of suits, as another clause enables suits being filed for variation of maintenance based on change of circumstances which would include births and deaths and marriages in the family of the maintenance-holder.

3. Section B (1) (b) provides for maintenance being awarded to widows of a proprietor and of his sons. It would work great hardship to the widows of a grandson and of a great grandson. Such widows may be driven to beggary or to something worse if no provision is made for maintenance being granted to them. No holder of an impartible estate would bear the sight of a lady of his family leading such a miserable life. Apparently, such widows are denied the right of maintenance on the ground that the son of the great grandson being cut off without maintenance, the widow of the great grandson who comes next to his son as his heir, should have no maintenance provided for her. But this argument cannot hold good in the case of the widow of a grandson.

In the case of the son's widow, provision is made for maintenance on the supposition that she is brought into the family by the progenitor.

(1) Ladies of high birth or connexion according to social ideas still prevalent cannot make a living by their earnings. They were maintained out of the maintenance allowance received by their husbands out of an impartible estate. If, on the death of their husbands, which by itself brings untold misery to them, they are suddenly deprived of their means of subsistence, their misery would know no bounds. No legislature, much less holders of impartible estates, should be so heartless as to subject such ladies to such misery upon misery.

(2) The right of maintenance was limited to three generations arbitrarily. Such arbitrary limitation should not be applied as an argument against maintenance being granted to helpless widows who cannot make a living by their own labour.

(3) The supposition on which the right of maintenance of the son's widow is based is very often imaginary. It does not always happen that a son's marriage is performed during the lifetime of the father. It is also not uncommon that a grandson's marriage is celebrated during the lifetime of the grandfather. Assuming that the supposition is well-founded, the fact that the progenitor for the time being brings a lady into the family as the wife of his junior son is no reason why the succeeding zamindar who is released under the Impartible Estates Act from the pious obligations of a Hindu son to pay off his father's debt should be burdened with the obligation of maintaining his brother's widow. So, whatever be the responsibility or moral obligation of the preceding zamindar to maintain his son's wife or widow it cannot be a burden upon the imperishable estate in the hands of his successor.

The provision made for the son's widow cannot be based upon such a flimsy ground but can be based upon higher grounds inter alia that a lady of a zamindar's family should be maintained so that the prestige of the family may not suffer.

(4) The argument that because a son succeeds to the property of a person in preference to his widow, in regard to maintenance also, the widow should come next to the son, is not sound.

A son is bound to maintain his mother whether he has any ancestral property or not. In paragraph 451 of Mayne's Hindu Law, the following passage occurs:—

"So the Mutashara lays down that where there may be no property but what has been self-acquired the only persons whose maintenance out of such property is imperative are aged parents, wife and minor children."

In 33 Mad. 555, at page 567, Sadasiva Ayyar, J., observes as follows:—

"In Venkataswami versus Kotayya (Second Appeal No 355 of 1911), I have attempted to show that according to the Shastras, sons had no right in the property which belonged to their father till both their father and mother were dead."

At page 568, the learned Judge observes:—

"The son is never considered in the ancient text books as the true owner of any property so long as his father or mother is alive—see Jagannath's Digest, page 293."

In paragraph 527 of Mayne's Hindu Law, the following passage occurs:—

"According to Manu upon conception by a wife, the husband himself was born again in her and became one person with her."

And so Vrihaspathi says—

"Of him, whose wife is not deceased half the body survives. How could another take the property while half the body of the owner lives."

So, the exclusion of the widows of the grandson and the great grandson from the right of maintenance is unjustifiable.

4. Section 12 declares that the right of a person to maintenance which was negatived by a decree cannot be revived by the Amendment Act. This provision appears to be unjust in two respects:—

(1) The ruling of the Privy Council in 41 Mad., 776, laid down for the first time contrary to the course of decisions of the Madras High Court that except on proof of custom no maintenance is payable out of an impartible estate, the Madras High Court having previously held that not only for purposes of succession but also for the purpose of maintenance an impartible estate should be deemed to be co-parcenary property. The object of the Amendment Act is to do away with the effect of the Privy Council ruling and to restore the law as it had been previously laid down by the Madras High Court.

(2) It is unjust that a person who is otherwise entitled to maintenance should have no maintenance awarded to him, simply because, owing to a novel conception of the law by the Privy Council which is now amended, his claim for maintenance was negatived. Unless suitable amendment of section 12 is made, the following absurdity would arise:—

Supposing there are two brothers A and B who are entitled to maintenance under the Amendment Act. But A's claim was negatived by a Court of Law in pursuance of the rulings of the Privy Council before the date of the Amendment Act. In view of the decision of the Court against A, B did not institute a suit to establish his claim for maintenance. After the Amendment Act comes into operation, B institutes a suit for recovery of maintenance. There can be no objection to his claim being decreed though in effect the claim of B had been denied. In substance, prior to the Amendment Act, the position of A and B was the same. The only difference was that there was a decree against A but not against B. In effect the Amendment Act conferred the right to maintenance upon B. Why should it not be deemed to have been conferred upon A also? The prior decree negativing his claim is only a technical bar and should not deter A from being benefited by a provision which legally, though not in fact, conferred a new right.

Besides, the question may arise whether the son of A, who is otherwise entitled to maintenance would be precluded from claiming maintenance—

- (1) during the lifetime of A; and
- (2) after his death.

The proviso to section 9 (a) disables the son from suing during the lifetime of the father. It is unjust in any case that a son should be debarred from suing for maintenance during the lifetime of the father who is unable to sue either on account of physical or mental disability or owing to legal disability.

The physical disability would relate to a case of the father being abroad, the mental disability, to a case of the father being demented and the legal disability, to a case of the father being stopped from suing by reason of a prior decree.

As the son is entitled to maintenance in his own right and not as the successor or heir of the father, it would be bad legislation to deprive the son of his right to sue during the lifetime of the father at all events in the circumstances mentioned above.

On the death of the father, in any case, the decree negativing the father's claim should not stand in the way of the son suing.

5. Though the decrees made for maintenance under the Amendment Act are in essence ordinary maintenance decrees, because of the limitation contained in section 10 (1) that the total amount payable by way of maintenance should not exceed one-fifth of the net income and of the fact that not only on account of the births and deaths in the families of junior branches but also on account of the births and deaths in the proprietor's family the quantum of maintenance payable to a particular branch or individual is liable to variation, the working out of the rights and the adjustment of the claims should, in the first instance, be left to the Collector who, in his executive capacity, may work out and adjust such rights and claims. The intervention of the Collector would reduce resort to courts to the minimum. The parties may have a right reserved to them to sue in a civil court of competent jurisdiction to set aside or modify the decision of the Collector within a limited period, say, one year or six months. Such an amendment was proposed to the Select Committee but was not accepted.

The adjustments have to be made not only with reference to the births and deaths in several families but also with reference to agreements and decrees obtained. So, special procedure providing for the intervention of the Collector is absolutely necessary; otherwise the suit instituted in the civil court, though it would be laid only for determining the quantum of maintenance payable to the plaintiff, would be highly complicated.

BILL No. 11 OF 1932.

A Bill to amend the Madras Inpartible Estates Act, 1904.

[As amended by the Select Committee.]

WHEREAS, it is expedient to amend the Madras Inpartible Estates Act, 1904, for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor-General has been obtained to the passing of this Act;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Madras Impartible Estates (Amendment) Act, 1904.

2. After section 8 of the Madras Impartible Estates Act, 1904, the following sections shall be added, namely:—

" 9. Where for the purpose of ascertaining the succession to an impartible estate, the estate has to be regarded as the property of a joint Hindu family, the following persons shall have a right of maintenance out of the impartible estate and its income, namely:—

(a) son, grandson, or great grandson, in the male line, born in lawful wedlock or adopted, of the proprietor of the impartible estate or of any previous proprietor thereof;

Provided that where a son is alive, it shall not be open to his son or grandson and, where a grandson is alive, to his son to make any claim for maintenance under this section;

(b) the widow of any previous proprietor of the impartible estate and the widow of a son of the proprietor or any previous proprietor thereof; and

(c) unmarried daughter born in lawful wedlock of the proprietor of the impartible estate or any previous proprietor thereof.

Explanation.—Maintenance shall, where necessary, include a provision for residence and in the case of an unmarried daughter of the proprietor or any previous proprietor a provision for the expenses of her marriage in accordance with the scale customary in the family.

" 10. (1) In determining the amount of maintenance payable to any of the persons mentioned in section 9, the court shall inter alia have regard to the following considerations, namely:—

- (i) the net income of the estate;
- (ii) the number of persons to be maintained out of the estate;
- (iii) the nearness of relationship of the person claiming to be maintained;
- (iv) the other sources of income of the claimant; and
- (v) the circumstances of the family of the claimant.

(2) The total amount payable out of the estate by way of maintenance to the relations mentioned in section 9 shall not ordinarily exceed one-fifth of the net income.

“ 11. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, the proprietor of an impartible estate shall have power to enter into a bona fide family arrangement whereby in full satisfaction of the claim for maintenance of a particular branch, any property other than the impartible estate is allotted to that branch, and where such an arrangement has been entered into no member of such a branch shall have any right after such arrangement to claim any maintenance from the estate.

“ 12. Nothing contained in this Act shall affect the right to maintenance out of an impartible estate and the income thereof, of any other relations of the proprietor or any previous proprietor under any existing law or custom.

“ 13. The award of maintenance under section 9 may be declared a charge upon any portion of an impartible estate or the income thereof.

“ 14. Any decree for maintenance passed under this Act may be varied by the court, if the facts and circumstances referred to in section 10 have undergone a material change.

" 15. Nothing contained in this Act shall affect any contract or decree of court subsisting on the date of the commencement of the Madras Impartible Estates (Amendment) Act, 1904, or confer any right to maintenance where such right has been determined by any such contract or decreed by any such decree of Court."
